

Below is an example of art scanned from a high quality camera ready art stat on photographic paper. No retouching was required.

Below is an example of art scanned from a poor quality photocopy. Extensive retouching and typesetting was required.

Below is an example of electronic art that was sent via email in JPEG format at 72 dpi. This format and resolution are typical for websites where logos are intended to only be viewed on a computer screen. Conversion to vector art and retouching was required.

Below is an example of electronic art that was sent via email in TIFF format. Conversion to vector art and retouching was required.

